

Bridging Our Community's Internet Gap

Imagine if some houses in our neighborhood didn't have clean water or electricity. That's happening right now with the internet. Many families in our community, especially in areas where money is tight, don't have fast or affordable internet.

What is Digital Redlining?

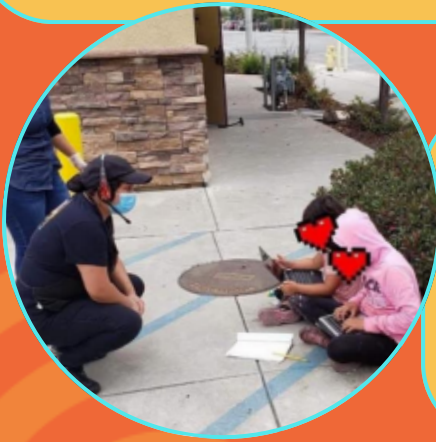

Digital redlining is when the big companies that give us internet don't build the same quality of service in all neighborhoods, especially in communities of color or areas with less money. Just like redlining in the past kept certain folks from getting home loans based on race or neighborhood, digital redlining today keeps us from getting good internet or even being able to connect to it.

DIGITAL EQUITY
LOS ANGELES

Why It Matters:

Without fast, quality & affordable internet, kids struggle with homework, job seekers can't find work, and families miss out on important services. It's about fairness – everyone should have the same chance to access the internet.

How you can help:

1 Support local projects working to bring better internet to everyone

2 Ask our city leaders to make sure internet companies treat every neighborhood fairly

3 Join us in demanding changes so that our community isn't left behind in the digital age

DigitalequityLA.org

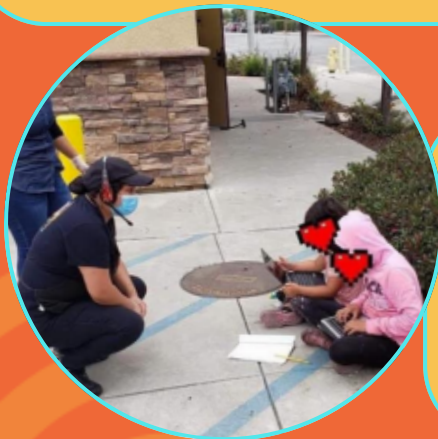

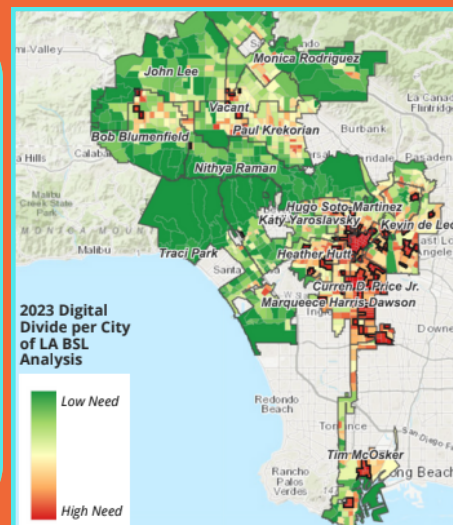

Bridging Our Community's Internet Gap

Imagine if some houses in our neighborhood didn't have clean water or electricity. That's happening right now with the internet. Many families in our community, especially in areas where money is tight, don't have fast or affordable internet.

What is Digital Redlining?

Digital redlining is when the big companies that give us internet don't build the same quality of service in all neighborhoods, especially in communities of color or areas with less money. Just like redlining in the past kept certain folks from getting home loans based on race or neighborhood, digital redlining today keeps us from getting good internet or even being able to connect to it.

Why It Matters:

Without fast, quality & affordable internet, kids struggle with homework, job seekers can't find work, and families miss out on important services. It's about fairness – everyone should have the same access to quality internet.

How you can help:

1 Support local projects working to bring better internet to everyone

2 Ask our city leaders to make sure internet companies treat every neighborhood fairly

3 Join us in demanding changes so that our community isn't left behind in the digital age

DigitalequityLA.org

